

Wipro mEdge Apps for SAP Fiori

Modern-day businesses are dealing with increased demands for mobile apps for their core services from their customer base. At the same time, BYOD (Bring Your Own Device) organizational policies are being considered by CIOs in order to maximize productivity of their employees. Catering to either scenario traditionally involved long development times coupled with considerations for multi-platform mobile rollouts. Businesses now require mobility to not only be a part of their digital strategy, they need it to be quickly deployable to address current market demands.
